

I respectfully urge the FCC to reject support for House Resolution 160 to limit or restrict in any way the content or programming of satellite radio. In the same way that subscription-based cable television channels such as HBO are, quite reasonably, not required to conform to the standards of networks that are available without charge via publicly-owned airwaves, so should subscriber-based private radio networks be allowed to freely exercise their right to program whatever content their subscribers deem valuable. Thank you, Karl Williams, Calabasas, California
